“ You fought a quiet, painful battle,
With strength no words could ever show.
Now you're finally free from suffering,
And I'll love you always, even as I let you go.

“ Aunt Carol as I have always called her, has been a true fighter with stubbornness, grit, and determination. Her body may have given up but her spirit never did.

I know she is no longer limited by an earthly body and her soul lives forever in heaven now. The first Pomeranian I ever saw was her dog Lobo. I'm certain they have been reunited along with all the other fur kids she has had over the years.

I love you aunt Carol, and will miss you until I see you again!

“ How Many Tears Danny Castor 11/16/25

*How many tears must I shed, to make the pain go away?
The more they flow,
The more I miss you each day.*

*I know you are now in a better place,
but I still long to see your face.
No more pain or suffering for you,
but mine still remains.*

*I catch a glimpse of you,
of where you used to lay.
But it's a cruel trick,
my mind feels it needs to play.*

*We were just beginning,
to start a new chapter in our life.
But the sickness had other plans,
and took you.. my dear wife.*

*The nights are long and sleepless, hoping to hear your voice.
I know it's never going to happen again,
please know this was not my choice.*

*I know you spent most of your life,
looking for your perfect love.
You told me you had found me as your soulmate,
the love you showed for me went beyond and above.*

*You will always be in my heart,
and this I want you to know.
We will meet again one day,
when from this world I go.*
