He has been a guiding light with those around him, always ready to lend a helping hand and share words of wisdom. Paul's faith in God shown brightly through his actions, and the love he showed to others. He exemplified what it truly means to live out the teachings of Christ. Phillip McClendon

“ I'll never forget the first time I met Paul it was at Calvary Baptist Church in Carthage, MO he warmed right up to me and my wife Marcella I never met a more kind man. I had many visits with Paul he was, I want to say, more like my grandpa. I'd go to the Carthage senior center, he was such a good mentor and he had so much wisdom. We would talk about fishing and life, and I remember he always called me buddy or Steve. He'd say always remember, work is a privilege, and he told me to work as long as I can. I took those words to heart. I will never forget this sweet guy and it was an honor to call him my friend and fellow church family member. Till I see you again my friend. See you later.
