“ Uncle Steve, I was at the funeral but how do you say goodbye? You were always encouraging of my artwork, you liked sharing knowledge or an interesting artifact or art. I have many fond memories of you over the years, others more challenging. You were a funny, fun- loving, intelligent, unique person who deep down cared even if you weren't always sure how to show it. A strange coincidence perhaps; your cat died a few days before you passed and a horse slain at the time of your services, just down the road. I like to think you are accompanied by these two animal totems. Grandma is having a hard time with all of this. Uncle Steve, I hope we meet again with open arms. Until then, I'll keep thinking you're going to walk in to grandma's from an auction. "Missy" xo

I wish I would have had the opportunity to meet him. I am his only biological daughter.

Sarah Flynn - May 07, 2021 at 08:29 PM

Sarah, I am his only niece. We were not aware of his possibly having a daughter until your bio Mom contacted my Mom after his passing. My family did question if he may have had a child or children, as he had a number of relationships throughout his life and was always a bachelor. I apologize, I am only now seeing your reply to my Memory comment. If you read this, feel free to reach out to me at melissacameron74 at gmail dot com. My married name is Walker now. If you are his bio daughter, we would be first cousins. Take care, Melissa W.

“ Steve's interest in art and antiques, especially, made him an interesting person to spend time with. Add to that his interest in genealogy, and you had a most interesting individual. I will miss miss him on visits back to Carthage, seeing him in his hat bobbing along. Peace be with you, Steve.

Wow. As far as I can tell, he had no interest in genealogy. I am his only biological child and he never contacted me even though he could have because he has my info.

“ Steve & I had lunch together just last Friday & he called me Sunday of this week to see if I made it home ok. I was shocked & devastated to hear of his transition. Steve was one of the very best people I have known in my life. He shared a lot of stories with me about his very fun & interesting life. He has a beautiful soul & we will meet again dear brother. I Love You! jc
